Biography

Kelsey Lamphier joined the Economic Development team in October 2012 as an assistant, facilitating the creation of proposal letters for new project leads. She later became the ED Analyst in January 2015 where her design skills assist with producing attractive marketing materials and presentations used for local site visits and international meetings. She also is the leader on all things research and data for both internal and external stakeholders

Kelsey holds a Bachelor's degree in Urban Planning and Development from Ball State University in Indiana. Her extensive background and diverse experience in Community and Economic Development make Kelsey an asset to the Surprise team.
